01 Make a précis of the following passage and give a suitable title:

Things change with the passage of time. There have been great many changes in the world. Most of thickly populated cities and towns that existed centuries ago are reduced to ruins and give a deserted look now. Cities and towns that were destroyed by natural calamities or razed to the ground by invaders long ago have again been populated thickly and become great trading centers and tourist places. Some of them afford breath-taking scenes and wonderful places ever seen on the earth. Small towns have been developed to be big cities and deserted places have become worth-seeing places. This all happens because change is a constant course of life.

It is but natural that man is attracted by innovations, discoveries, inventions, new creations and change in his life. That is why he has created wonderful things for his ease and comfort. Wonderful, magnificent and sky-high buildings reflect his tendency to high life, luxurious living and glorious and glamorous station of life. Gone are the days when man used to light oil lamp and cooked food by burning firewood and coal. Means of transport, communications and routes of conveyance have drastically changed. Modern inventions have brought wonderful change in our life-style and made our mobility frequent and speedy, and living amazingly convenient.

Some drastic and violent changes were brought by cruel and wicked invaders who not only plundered wealth and precious things, but also put tens of thousands of innocent people to sword. Genghis Khan and Hulagu Khan of Mongol stock are the worst examples of tyranny, scourge, mass killing of Muslims and hostility and ill-will towards Islam. They laid cities, crops and bazaars waste and set libraries and properties of Muslims on fire and reduced magnificent buildings to debris and dust and burnt thousands of precious and rare books to ashes. Their invasions came as wrath of God to teach transgressors a lesson.

Baghdad and Delhi are two glaring examples of brutality and maltreatment to innocent people whom attackers caught unawares and put them to sword mercilessly. However, things change with the passage of time. Desolate and destructed places were populated again. Life returned to these places. Markets bustling with life remained open for longer hours and sold wonderful things. Places of entertainment, show business, cinemas and theaters attracted more audience, spectators and visitors than ever. Culture, civilizations, old traditions and life were revived to afford the people an opportunity to enjoy exuberance, beauties of nature, insight, profound knowledge and innumerable worldly and divine blessings.

02 Read the following passage carefully and answer the questions set below it.

We human beings are often too hasty to use our brains. Even in most important matters and critical junctures, we take a leap in the dark. We merely embark upon most important ventures without proper deliberation and planning. Sometimes we are least careful and forget a best proverb, "Slow and steady wins the race." Like many hit and run drivers, we commit blunders and hurt ourselves and other innocent people. It is because of certain reasons. First, like a blacksmith, we have so many irons in the fire. We are overtaken by worldly affairs, and the world is too much with us. We are too busy to look behind and to and fro. Like a reckless driver, who just pulls out to gain a few minutes out of the required time, we hasten to do several things in a short time. Ambitions have overtaken us, and we feel overcome, lost and hollow. Second, we think that we can make most of our time by hurrying from our schedule. Third, there are many things that we miscalculate or underestimate. They take their due time to materialize. Nature has its own course, and when we humans go against it, suffer deservedly. Nature has its own laws, order and principles for we people to abide by. In most cases, we go against them or ignore them altogether. Fourth, we are too impatient to wait and see what way the wind blows. We become too optimistic to know the hard realities of life and hidden dangers lying in wait in our way. In addition, we don't observe the things with clear head and observant eyes, and as a result, we are caught unawares in most of the things we do. Absence of proper deliberation leads us to limbo, chaos and confusion. Last, ignorance about dangers around, wishful thinking and building castles in the air come in our way and leave us in the lurch.

01 Make a précis of the following passage and give a suitable title: 20

Things change with the passage of time. There have been great many changes in the world. Most of thickly populated cities and towns that existed centuries ago are reduced to ruins and give a deserted look now. Cities and towns that were destroyed by natural calamities or razed to the ground by invaders long ago have again been populated thickly and become great trading centers and tourist places. Some of them afford breath-taking scenes and wonderful places ever seen on the earth. Small towns have been developed to be big cities and deserted places have become worth-seeing places. This all happens because change is a constant course of life.

It is but natural that man is attracted by innovations, discoveries, inventions, new creations and change in his life. That is why he has created wonderful things for his ease and comfort. Wonderful, magnificent and sky-high buildings reflect his tendency to high life, luxurious living and glorious and glamorous station of life. Gone are the days when man used to light oil lamp and cooked food by burning firewood and coal. Means of transport, communications and routes of conveyance have drastically changed. Modern inventions have brought wonderful change in our life-style and made our mobility frequent and speedy, and living amazingly convenient.

Some drastic and violent changes were brought by cruel and wicked invaders who not only plundered wealth and precious things, but also put tens of thousands of innocent people to sword. Genghis Khan and Hulagu Khan of Mongol stock are the worst examples of tyranny, scourge, mass killing of Muslims and hostility and ill-will towards Islam. They laid cities, crops and bazaars waste and set libraries and properties of Muslims on fire and reduced magnificent buildings to debris and dust and burnt thousands of precious and rare books to ashes. Their invasions came as wrath of God to teach transgressors a lesson.

Baghdad and Delhi are two glaring examples of brutality and maltreatment to innocent people whom attackers caught unawares and put them to sword mercilessly. However, things change with the passage of time. Desolate and destructed places were populated again. Life returned to these places. Markets bustling with life remained open for longer hours and sold wonderful things. Places of entertainment, show business, cinemas and theaters attracted more audience, spectators and visitors than ever. Culture, civilizations, old traditions and life were revived to afford the people an opportunity to enjoy exuberance, beauties of nature, insight, profound knowledge and innumerable worldly and divine blessings.

02 Read the following passage carefully and answer the questions set below it.

We human beings are often too hasty to use our brains. Even in most important matters and critical junctures, we take a leap in the dark. We merely embark upon most important ventures without proper deliberation and planning. Sometimes we are least careful and forget a best proverb, "Slow and steady wins the race." Like many hit and run drivers, we commit blunders and hurt ourselves and other innocent people. It is because of certain reasons. First, like a blacksmith, we have so many irons in the fire. We are overtaken by worldly affairs, and the world is too much with us. We are too busy to look behind and to and fro. Like a reckless driver, who just pulls out to gain a few minutes out of the required time, we hasten to do several things in a short time. Ambitions have overtaken us, and we feel overcome, lost and hollow. Second, we think that we can make most of our time by hurrying from our schedule. Third, there are many things that we miscalculate or underestimate. They take their due time to materialize. Nature has its own course, and when we humans go against it, suffer deservedly. Nature has its own laws, order and principles for we people to abide by. In most cases, we go against them or ignore them altogether. Fourth, we are too impatient to wait and see what way the wind blows. We become too optimistic to know the hard realities of life and hidden dangers lying in wait in our way. In addition, we don't observe the things with clear head and observant eyes, and as a result, we are caught unawares in most of the things we do. Absence of proper deliberation leads us to limbo, chaos and confusion. Last, ignorance about dangers around, wishful thinking and building castles in the air come in our way and leave us in the lurch.

- Compute Mean, median and mode from the frequency distribution and comment on your findings. Prepare Histogram and comment on the shape.
- 02 (A) Distinguish between the following terms. 06
- (i) Absolute measure of Dispersion and Relative measure of Dispersion.
- (ii) Measure of Skewness and Measure of Kurtosis.
- (iii) Moments about Origin and Moments about Mean.
- (B) Following are the values calculated from a frequency distribution. 14
- $\sum f = 1000$, $\sum fx = 26740$, $\sum fx^2 = 778700$, $\sum fx^3 = 24187750$, $\sum fx^4 = 792392187.3$
- Using the above values.
- (i) Find the first four moments about origin and then obtain first four Moments about mean using the appropriate formulae.
- (ii) Calculate coefficient of skewness and kurtosis and give comments on the values.
- 03 (A) Define the following terms: 06
- (i) Probability and its axioms
- (ii) Mutually and Non-Mutually Exclusive Events.
- (iii) Dependent and Independent Events.
- (B) In an experiment to study the relationship of hypertension and smoking habits, 14
the following data are collected for 180 individuals:

Experiment	Non-Smokers	Moderate Smokers	Heavy Smokers.
Hypertension	31	46	35
No Hypertension	38	16	14

If one of these individuals is selected at random, find the probability that the person is:

- (i) A moderate smoker.
- (ii) A heavy smoker and experiencing hypertension.
- (iii) Experiencing hypertension given that the person is Non-smoker.

- 04 (A) Given a Simple Linear Regression model Y on X , $Y = \alpha + \beta X + \epsilon$ 10
Apply method of least square to obtain the estimate of regression coefficients α and β .
- (B) What do you understand by Multiple correlation coefficient and how it 10 differs from partial correlation coefficient. Explain the concept by assuming one dependent variable and two independent variables.
- 05 (A) Differentiate between the probability sampling and non-probability sampling. 08
Define any two sampling methods of each and explain briefly the procedure of sampling by giving example.
- (B) In a private library, the books are kept on 150 shelves of similar size. The 12 numbers of books on 15 shelves picked at random were found to be 38, 33, 35, 43, 41, 28, 32, 39, 40, 32, 36, 30, 31, 38 and 35. Estimate the average number of books in the library and obtain approximately 95% confidence interval for it.
- 06 (A) What is 'Estimation'. Also define the types of estimation. Describe briefly 08 the properties of a good estimate.
- (B) A simple random sample of $n=40$ college students were interviewed to 12 determine the proportion of students in favour of converting from the semester to the quarter system. Twenty five of the students answered affirmatively. Estimate the proportion of students on campus in favour of the change (assume $N=2000$). Place a bound on the error of estimation.
- 07 (A) An aircraft designer has theoretical evidence that painting the airplane reduces 10 its specified power and flap setting. He tests six consecutive airplanes from the assembly line before and after painting and obtains the top speed (in mph).

Airplane	1	2	3	4	5	6
Painted	286	285	279	283	281	286
Not Painted	289	286	283	288	283	289

Do the data support the designer theory using paired t test? Use 5% level of significance.

- (B) A criminologist conducted a survey to determine whether the incidence 10 of certain types of crime varied from one part of a large city to another. The following table shows the number of crime committed in four areas of the city during the past year.

District	Assault	Burglary	Homocide.
1	162	118	451
2	310	196	996
3	258	193	458
4	280	175	390

Can we conclude from these data at the 0.01 level of significance that the occurrence of these types of crime is dependent on the city district?

- 08 (A) Describe the important functions of Department of Statistics, State Bank of 10
Pakistan. Also give some of its major publications.
- (B) Write short note on any Two of the following: 10
(i) Sindh Bureau of Statistics (SBS)
(ii) Population Census Organization (PCO)
(iii) Agriculture Census Organization (ACO)
